'Hands Tied' on Bingo, Chief Says

POLICE BRING IN OPERATOR, THEN FREE HIM

'Everything Fixed' Captain Told When Pair Protest Their Detention.

ORDERED CLOSED SEPT. 20

Statements By Bell Intimate Mayor Gave 'Go Ahead' on Game at Playtime.

Admitting that bingo play was resumed Saturday evening at the Playtime parlors, 217 Park avenue east, Police Chief Thomas M Bell intimated today that his 'stay closed" order of Sept 20 had been overruled

Two men, reportedly the operator of the game and the other the owner of the premises, were brought to police statio Saturday night but no charges were placed against them The game at the Playtime was not stopped

The men were brought in by Patrolmen John Gilbert and Glen Adams after Capt Jesse Schwab had received telephone calls asking if bingo games had been resumed.

When the two men protested that "everything has been fixed," Schwab telephoned Police Chief Tom Bell, who advised him, he said, that "conditions" seemed to indicate that bingo was to be permitted, at least at the Playtime. They were released from custody as soon as Schwab finished his conversation with Bell.

Chief Bell admitted today that his hands, in effect were tied, so far as complete enforcement of his Sept 20 closing order was concerned

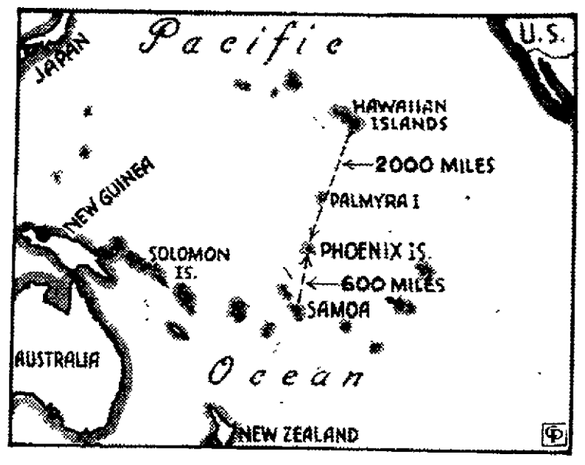

He would not say that his orders had come from Mayor W J Locke, though he intimated that he had received orders Mayor Locke was not available to a News-Journal reporter who sought

MAIL EARLY!

Postal Official Warns Cards Must Be In Mail Dec. 1.

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The bulk of Christmas cards and parcels must be in the mails by Dec. 1 if delivery on time is to be assured, Smith W Purdum, second assistant postmaster general, warned today

Unprecedented wartime demands and prospects of a record volume of Christmas mail, he said make necessary earlier mailings than ever before. He said if Christmas mail was held back by senders until the usual time, Dec. 15 to Dec. 23 thousands of gifts would not reach their destinations until after Christmas

CHARGES WASTE

Sen. Byrd Plans Hearings on Federal Manpower Uses.

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Chairman Harry F. Byrd, D, Va, of the joint congressional economy committee will begin hearings soon on his charge that the federal government is the "chief offender in the waste and hoarding of manpower."

Byrd accused the government of "recklessly" employing vast numbers of unnecessary workers needed elsewhere in the war effort and of wasting millions of dollars. He said at least one-third of the 3,000,000 employes in the federal civil service could be dismissed without harming war agencies.

"Nothing in all history—and I say this advisedly—is in any way comparable to the waste and inefficiency that now exist in the vast number of bureaus in our government today," Byrd said.

The localities and cost of delivery influence the prices. For instance, Chillicothe housewives pay 11 cents a quart for milk at grocery stores, 13 cents if it is delivered. In Cincinnati the price is 14 cents at the doorstep.

101 In Biggest Citizenship Class Get Papers Wednesday

Scores of Richland countians whose native lands in Europe are on the side of the Axis will seek American citizenship Wednesday as they go before Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston at the courthouse for their final examination for naturalization papers.

The class of 101 is one of the largest ever to apply for citizenship in the county and the first since last May.

While a large number of the applicants are natives of Yugoslavia, many of them were born in Germany and Italy, County Clerk Howard Wenning said.

It is expected that all the applications will be heard in one day with J. A Maloney, federal examiner from Youngstown, assisting Thomas C. Hoffman, county naturalization clerk, with the examinations.

Judge Huston will question the applicants and determine whether they shall become citizens.

Detail work in connection with the applications was handled at preliminary hearings last month when the applicants presented their character witnesses.

The class includes natives of at least a dozen countries, most of them in southern and central Europe. There are a few born in Canada and the British Isles.

FIGHT AGAINST ANTI-POLL TAX

Senators Threaten To Inject Repeal of 40-Hour Week Into Bitter Contest.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Senate foes of the anti-poll tax bill today threatened to inject repeal of the 40-hour week, prohibition and other ticklish issues into the battle if leaders of the upper branch persist in efforts to break their filibuster.

The measure which would prohibit eight southern states from making payment of poll taxes a prerequisite to voting for candidates for federal offices, has aroused bitter resentment among southern senators

Sponsors of the measure admitted that they may be forced to seek adoption of the drastic cloture rule to shut off debate and bring the measure to a vote.

The bitterness of those opposing the bill was heightened by the arrest Saturday of Senators Bunker (D., Nev.), Maybank (D., S. C.), and McKellar (D., Tenn.) in order to bring them to the senate chamber to establish a quorum and permit resumption of debate.

"The methods of enforcing attendance of senators by invading their private apartments is unheard of and unthinkable on this

'Missed' Pledges Start Arriving For War Chest

Pledges from persons missed in the Commando campaign last week continued to arrive at War Chest headquarters today to add to the already imposing "over-the-top" figure of $151 026 reached Saturday night in the drive for $140 377

Headquarters said a number of persons missed in the Commando canvass of 20,000 persons had delivered their pledges in person. Arrangements have been made to send messengers to receive pledges from others who contacted headquarters by telephone.

Another report on the amount raised is to be made later in the week. Tabulations then will include reports from rural sections and pledges being received at the War Chest office.

FIGHT ENTERS SECOND ROUND ON SEA, LAND

Battleships Expected to Slug It Out in Gigantic Six-Day-Old Battle.

NAVY VEILS DETAILS

Jap Invasion Fleet of Giant Size Reported North of Guadalcanal.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The second round of the battle of the Solomons raged on land, sea and in the air today with belief increasing that this time there may be a showdown engagement between American and Japanese naval forces which include battleships

The current fighting is six days old U. S marines and soldiers—some of whom have been defending their positions for 103 days—are holding their own, according to latest reports.

The navy is withholding all details of the fighting which began last Thursday night (Solomons time) lest the enemy obtain valuable information But reports from Pearl Harbor, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters in Australia and Tokyo, as well as the guarded comments of naval spokesmen here indicated that the Japanese have sent no boy on a man's errand for this battle

Both sides are known to have battleships in the area and any showdown naval battle seems certain to bring about the first "shoot-it-out" engagement of this war between dreadnaughts.

Last night's communique added little to the picture of the terrific struggle that apparently is going on in those tropical islands and in the air and on the sea around them

"Numerous enemy surface forces are active in the southeastern Solomons in an attempt to reinforce the enemy troops now on Guadalcanal and to disrupt our delivery of supplies to our forces which now occupy shore positions in this

WAR OUTPUT HIT

Production Crippled as 86 Leave Jobs at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—War production was seriously crippled today at the Aluminum Company of America as 86 die sinkers, trimmers and polishers, members of the Independent International Diesinkers union, continued a strike they started Saturday.

Dissatisfaction over working conditions and refusal of the company to raise their wages, Joseph G. Meiner, union international chairman, said was the cause of the strike.

The men are paid $1 85 an hour, but Meiner asserted that similar workers in 30 shops to which Alcoa has sublet diemaking jobs were receiving $1.90 to $2 35 an hour.

OHIO 'CHUTIST KILLED

WAR Bulletins

LONDON —(INS)— A report that an "extensive revolt" has broken out in western Croatia was carried today by Reuters (British) news agency. The dispatch, carrying a "German frontier" dateline, said that 15,000 Yugoslav guerillas were in action, operating independently of the well-organized forces of Gen. Draja Mikhailovitch.

LONDON — (INS) — The German-operated Paris radio stated today that the French fleet is at the Toulon naval base "awaiting battle orders" The Nazis did not elaborate on the statement.

LONDON — (INS) — Premier Mussolini has ordered a strict patrol of the entire Italian coast, apparently in fear of invasion, the Allied-controlled Morocco radio reported today.

STOCKHOLM—(U P)—German news agency reports from Vichy said today that several prominent French politicians, including former Premiere Pierre Etienne Flandin, had escaped from France to participate in formation of a new French government at North Africa.

REDS ADVANCE AGAINST NAZIS

Take Key Position in North as Stalingrad Defenders Beat Off New Attacks.

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—With a frigid, wintry wind sweeping across the steppes, the Red army again beat off German attacks within besieged Stalingrad advancing slightly in the Caucasus and, in a surprise move far to the north, snatched a "place of great tactical importance" from the Germans on the Volkhov front between Lake Ilmen and Leningrad, the Russians announced today.

The Russian troops broke into the German-occupied community in an unnamed sector of the Volkhov front, forcing the Germans to withdraw, and then held it against all counter-attacks, the Soviet mid-day communique said.

"About one battalion of infantry was wiped out and war material was captured," the communique reported

The action seemed to indicate that the Red army planned to take advantage of the German high command's preoccupation with the new front in North Africa with winter jabs at the long German line in Russia

A slight advance southeast of Nalchik was reported Here the Germans have been stalled for weeks in their effort to drive toward the northwest terminus of the Georgian military highway over the Caucasus mountains.

Civil Service Association To Ask More Pay For State Workers.

COLUMBUS—(U P)—The executive board of the Ohio Civil Service Employes association announced today that state employes will ask the 95th general assembly for a wage increase of "conservative proportions"

British Bombers Smash at Genoa in Fourth Raid of This Month.

(By Associated Press)

The Axis admitted today that it had moved German and Italian forces into the French protectorate of Tunisia, and British and American fighting men came to grips with them there with an evident determination to give Hitler and Mussolini a taste of Dunkerque.

An Italian communique said "Italian and German troops have landed in Tunisia with the approval of civil and military French authorities."

Whatever French civil and military authorities the Italians had in mind in this version, they obviously did not include stout-hearted French garrisons of the Bizerte naval base and the Tunis airfields who welcomed the invaders only with bullets and put up what resistance their limited force permitted

Allied sources who had said the Axis troops were in Tunisia by the middle of last week, estimated that the initial force aggregated 10,000, and said desperate attempts were being made to reinforce them by sea and air.

The British and American assault force from eastern Algeria streamed across the border into the attack, apparently ready for any issue and able to back up its bid for Bizerte and Tunisia with powerful force.

The Germans reported bombing the airfield and port of Bone, the eastern Algeria advance base of the British-American attack.

Reuters said it recorded a broadcast by the Morocco radio reporting that Hitler had ordered Ger-

IT'S GROWING

Lend-Lease Aid to Allies at New High During October.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Instead of sharply declining as forecast by the Axis, lend-lease aid to America's allies has risen greatly since our entry into the war and is likely to show a "growing increase" in 1943.

President Roosevelt, announcing a new monthly record of more than $913,000,000 worth of lend-lease goods and services furnished beneficiaries in October, compared with a previous high of $643,000,000 in September, said these figures "show how wrong the Axis was in assuming that our aid to our allies would sharply decline once we had been brought into the war."

"We have never intended and do not intend to diminish our lend-lease aid in the slightest," he asserted.

IN WRONG PLACE

Buck's Out of Bounds in Warren Five and Ten Cent Store.

WARREN — (U P)— A buck was out of place in a dime store here today. Firemen captured a young deer in a five and ten cent store after it charged across a park in the center of the downtown district, leaped over a parked automobile and plunged through the store's window.

The deer was tied up and then taken by truck to woods outside the town where he was released.

CHAPTER XVII

The afternoon papers carried the same item. And another column had it the next day. Fordyce was one of the best directors in the business. He had been married four times. His reputation with women was bad.

At first Livia was amused But as the item was repeated, she thought she saw a leer on the face of everyone she met. And she worried about Bruce's reaction.

"I'm going to stop this," she told Bertha and went to see Jack Tennant in his office.

"I got you some swell breaks, didn't I?" he grinned at her. Livia controlled her rising anger She reminded him of the clause in her contract prohibiting marriage. "But this is only a publicity stunt," he said.

"Please stop it," she begged him, "It's embarrassing—I don't know him."

"I can fix that, too," he said.

"Heavens, no."

She left him and called Bruce.

"Congratulations," he said coldly before she could speak.

"But I'm not—" she said.

"He can do a lot for your career," he persisted.

"But it's all a publicity—"

"He'll make you a star. He's done that to all his other wives," said Bruce.

"You're the most irritating man I've ever known," stormed Livia.

"I hope you'll be very happy, Mrs. Fordyce."

She slammed the receiver down.

Charles Fordyce was unhappy. Alice Delaware, the star of his next picture, was behaving as usual. Her pink, fragile fingers were clawing deep into every scene. And it was impossible to make her understand that she was ruining the picture.

"It serves me right," he thought moodily. He had broken two important rules—to leave the boss' wife alone, and to be indifferent to his leading lady.

He flicked through the stack of photographs on his big mahogany desk. Livia's face smiled back to him, now challengingly, now coy, now demure. He liked her best in the swimming suits.

"She has her nerve," he thought.

He tossed the pile of photographs across to his secretary.

"Find out the press boy who did it," he snapped, "He's got to be fired—and so has she."

If this had happened at any other time, he might have played ball. She was attractive, and she was young and would be a nice young change from Alice Delaware. But this was no time to upset Alice. She had even threatened to go to her husband and get another director for the picture. Ordinarily he would have told her to go to hell and take her husband, who was his boss, with her.

"But, damn it. I get a good picture for once," he said aloud irritatedly.

But he had to use tact. It was no use appealing to Hal Schneider. He was more scared of Alice than anyone else in the studio.

"Miss Delaware on the phone," his secretary interrupted his brooding.

"Say I'm out," he said, then changed his mind. Better get it over now. "Hello, Alice, baby," he said cheerfully and listened patiently until Alice exhausted her flow of invective. Then he said quickly.

"I thought you were too smart to fall for a phoney publicity story. Check with the department. The guy who dreamed up the story is fired"

But Alice was a business girl. She would use her advantage to get her own way about the picture. And Fordyce knew this.

He put the receiver down carefully. His secretary came in.

"There's a young lady to see you. A Livia Clarkson

"Oh, send her in," roared the director.

The eyes that confronted him were as angry as his own.

"You must stop this immediately," Livia said, waving the newspaper in her hand. Fordyce laughed.

"You're either a good actress, or extremely naive," he said

"I want a retraction"

"Oh, you want a retraction," he grinned She was prettier than her photographs.

"What's the use?" said Livia angrily. "I'm a nobody in Hollywood. They can do and say anything."

"I trust the story didn't seriously inconvenience you," said Fordyce. She refused to play

"It's ruined my life," she exaggerated.

"Me, too," grinned Fordyce.

Jack Tennant sidled into the room. He was worried. Publicity via the somewhat old-fashioned medium of a romance had seemed good at the time. He was the only studio employe unaware of the previous attachment existing with Alice Delaware. But he had taken fright when the summons came to Fordyce's office. He relaxed So they did know each other after all? For once he had told something near the truth. But the director's first words disillusioned him.

Livia began to feel sorry for the fat, bald press agent And when Fordyce said, "You're fired," she interrupted:

"Please not on my account."

"It isn't on your account," said Fordyce grimly. She came close to him.

"Please don't fire him." Tennant was married and had two children. "Please," she begged Fordyce. He smiled at her suddenly.

"All right," he said and turned to Tennant "Thank the lady"

"Thank you," said Tennant humbly She was embarrassed, and picked up her handbag from the desk

"What's your hurry?" demanded Fordyce, "Sit down" He motioned Livia to a deep leather arm-chair. He offered her a cigaret. She shook her head.

"I was stupid just now." He resisted the impulse to kiss her soft mouth. With a girl like this you probably had to go slow.

"What pictures have you done?" he asked her

Livia was thinking, "In a month my option comes up. Will they renew it?" Fordyce seemed kind. She was prepared to discount the stories she had heard about him If he put in a word for her, and for Bertha, they might be spared the imminent economy ax

"I hear they are cutting down on expenses," she said. His face darkened. His budget had been trimmed from $900,000 to $600,000. And this was why all the roles had to be well-cast and well-played, and why he must not let Alice destroy the balance.

"Why?" he asked her

"I don't want to be fired," she said simply. The speaking box on his desk showed a green light

"Yes?"

"Mr Schneider wants to see you right away"

"Okay, I'll be right there," he said.

Had Alice told her husband? Livia stood up.

"How about dinner tonight?" She hesitated. "We can go to Ciro's or somewhere quiet if you like."

She had thought he would suggest his house and was relieved.

"I haven't any etchings," he said walking with her to the door. They both laughed.

Livia hesitated about telling Bertha of her date with Fordyce, but she finally said:

"I'm going out"

This was unusual, and Bertha was curious "Who with?"

"A director"

"Don't tell me—Charles Fordyce? Right?"

"Right—I met him this morning."

"The quieter they are, the faster they work."

"Bertha!"

"I'm kidding But I hope you do yourself some good, honey."

"I might do you all some good."

"Forget it," said Bertha sharply, "That sort of man gives nothing for nothing. He's dynamite. You don't play with dynamite."

"I like him," said Livia defiantly.

"Go ahead, like him. But don't go out with him Say, what's happened to that beau of yours—Bruce something?"

Livia did not answer. She did not want to think about Bruce just now.

Fordyce was half an hour late.

"I was kept at the studio," he told her He omitted to mention a row he had had with Schneider.

"If I didn't believe in the damn picture so much, I'd walk out," he told Schneider They compromised Alice's role was to overshadow the rest, but not as much as she had wanted

"Let's go to the beach," he said to Livia, "There's a good restaurant near Malidu."

He knew the proprietor of the place. It was unfrequented by picture people. Mostly bookmakers and race touts gambled in the back room, which was strictly private.

The chauffeur's back was square and wide, and seemed protective to Livia when Fordyce, with an automatic gesture, took her hand, turned it up, and kissed the palm

"Sh!" she whispered, indicating the chauffeur

"Oh, Donald? He's deaf, dumb, and blind," said Fordyce, and Livia was less convinced of the protective qualities of the driver's back But she must not get angry. A word from him, and their jobs were safe.

Charles put his arm around her waist and drew her to him. He meant to kiss her lips, but Livia's sudden twist gave him her cheek instead Type number three, he decided He classified all women into three groups—the very easy, the easy, and the less easy With the latter group, you usually let them have dinner first He was a good talker and unlike most executives in Hollywood, read books as well as scripts.

"I really would like you to see my library," he told her and laughed, "I mean really to see the books." He had many first editions.

The dining room was empty.

"You remind me of someone," he said suddenly. They were halfway through the meal.

"An actress?" Livia asked. She wondered if she reminded him of Earl Dixon.

"I guess so," he said slowly.

"I'm supposed to be a cross between Greer Garson and Josephine Hutchinson," she smiled.

The red California wine warmed her cheeks and eyes He brought his chair closer to her and held her hand. Now perhaps was the time to ask his help

"We're all getting fired," she told him. A flicker of non-interest passed in and out of his eyes. "What's the matter with me?" she suddenly asked him. "Why can't I get on? I may be a bad actress, of course, but no one's ever bothered to find out."

"I think you'd be all right," he said and added, "I can talk to Schneider. Is that what you want me to do?" He leaned closer and played with a red-gold curl.

"Not only for me, but the others—"

"Oh, there are others? That might be more difficult" Her eyes were troubled again, and he said, "All right, the others as well."

She was happy And when he said, "Let's not go home immediately; let's drive through the mountains," she agreed. There was the chauffeur And she had heard him speak, so he was not dumb and probably not deaf.

But he might have been both when Fordyce took her in his arms and almost smothered her in a bear-like embrace. She tried to bring her arms up to push him away He kissed her mouth until the lips were forced apart She smashed her closed fist against his mouth.

A small trickle of blood started from the corner of his mouth. She stared at her hand. There was no pain, merely an awkward lifelessness She waited for his anger to break and moved from him.

When she looked at Fordyce again, he was staring ahead. It was hard to know what he was thinking. The trickle of blood had reached his collar.

"Your neck is bleeding," she told him coldly. She tried to point with her right hand and gave a cry of pain He turned slowly and followed her eyes to her wrist She was crying now.

"D'ye do this sort of thing often?" he asked sternly.

She shook her head, biting her lip to hold the pain.

Watch ADELINE GRAY try Uncle Sam's new nylon 'chute in its first— "Live Test"

THERE SHE GOES! A 24-year-old veteran of the "silk" is making the first jump test of a new nylon 'chute. Watch as she pulls the rip-cord—

IT OPENS! It holds! It's okay! And so is Adeline Gray as she floats earthward to the approval and applause of Army and Navy observers.

A PERFECT LANDING—and now for a Camel. And when Adeline Gray says: "Camels suit me to a 'T,'" she's talking a language any smoker can understand (see right).

That's the proving ground of a parachute—just as the "T-Zone" is the proving ground of your cigarette (see below)

YOU can test them in laboratories and wind tunnels...

You can toss them out with weighted dummies...

But the final test of a parachute is the "live test"—when you step out in mid-air in an actual jump.

And it's like that with cigarettes, too. The final test of any brand is when you light it and smoke it.

Adeline Gray, a steady Camel smoker, can tell you: "Camels are milder all ways."

Many a man at the front could tell you the same—Camels are the favorite pack there, too. But only your own "T-Zone" can tell you the cigarette that suits you best.

The "T-Zone" where cigarettes are judged

The "T-ZONE"—Taste and Throat—is the proving ground for cigarettes. Only your taste and throat can decide which cigarette tastes best to you...and how it affects your throat. For your taste and throat are absolutely individual to you. Based on the experience of millions of smokers, we believe Camels will suit your "T-ZONE" to a "T." Prove it for yourself!

Baked Chicken In The Menu Will Be A Special Treat

By BETSY NEWMAN

Once in awhile the old sweet tooth longs for something like cake. Also for something that isn't labeled "economical" or "inexpensive." I believe these yearnings should be satisfied if possible. Fowls and chickens generally have considerable waste, but they "go a long way" too.

Today's Menu.

Baked Chicken Mashed Potatoes
Hot Biscuits Canned Peas
Jiffy Meat Relish
Honey Chocolate Cake
Coffee

Baked Chicken.

1 fowl or chicken cut as for fricassee
1 stalk celery
1 medium sized onion
Pepper and salt

Wash chicken, put into roaster or casserole and put into oven which has been set at 350 degrees F. When about half done add onion cut into pieces and stalk of celery, sprinkle liberally with pepper until tender. You can add a little water if the meat seems too dry, and you can cover it after it is nicely brown, if you like. Take meat from baking dish, add flour to gravy in pan, mix smooth, add 1½ cups water and cook until thick, seasoning it if necessary before straining and serving.

Honey Chocolate Cake.

1 cup sifted flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
¼ cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
¾ cup mild honey
½ cup melted shortening
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
¼ cup evaporated milk

Mix and sift flour and baking soda; add sugar to eggs, mixing well; add honey a little at a time, mixing thoroughly after each addition. Add melted shortening, vanilla and chocolate. Add flour and milk alternately to chocolate mixture and pour into greased and floured cake pan. Bake in moderate over (350 degrees F.) for 40 minutes. Frost with penuche frosting, made with prepared mixture, according to directions on package. Makes 1 8-inch square cake.

Everett, Washington, D. C., announced today.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white damask satin gown on semi-princess style with angel wing sleeves, sweetheart neckline and an off-face veil held by a headpiece set with pearlized orange blossoms. Her jewelry was a pearl and diamond pin, gift from her aunt, and she carried a large bouquet of white roses and gardenias.

Miss Florence Mae Everett, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor dressed in a green taffeta dress. She carried a bouquet of bronze mums with gold ribbon streams. The other attendants, Miss Barbara Everett, sister, had a gold taffeta dress, with a bouquet of yellow mums. "Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Olina's tremulous question and choked back sob decided me. I saw that she was suffering, and had appealed to me for sympathy. Whether princess or beggar-maid, I felt that I must treat her exactly as I always did Marion or Mary when they came to me for sympathy, or for the affectionate understanding I fervently pray some woman will give to my own beloved small daughter, Faith, if she ever needs it when she is a grown-up.

Then a sudden thought struck me: Olina's mother was near; why didn't she confide in her? But when I heard another choked sob I put my hand tenderly on Olina's bowed head.

"Of course, Olina dear," I said. "Tell me anything you wish."

Not a Pretty Story.

She raised her great eyes to mine, with an abashed look, and said:

"It isn't a pretty story—in spots—and parts of it you know already. But I think it is your due to hear it in full, and perhaps when I have finished you will realize why I did some of the things for which you very properly condemned me."

Her voice trailed off into silence for a minute before she quietly picked up the fan picture she had received and beat lightly upon it with the tips of her fingers.

"Have you figured out the meaning of this yet?" she asked, with evident anxiety, and whether by accident or design her forefinger was resting on the picture just where a tiny sliver of white projected from the slightly awry lefthand gate post.

I decided at once to tell her the meaning I had read into the fan letter, but which I had agreed with her mother, exiled Queen Olga, should be kept from Olina for awhile.

Recalls Old Talk.

Now I recalled that the scrap of excited colloquy which I had overheard between them just after Olina had showed the fan letter and picture to me, had convinced me that they both had a theory about the writer of the letter which they were then unwilling to reveal to me.

"I may be mistaken, of course," I said, "but I believe these gate posts are meant to represent those at The Larches, where you lived the summer you were on Long Island, and I think this tiny sliver of white is a reminder that the loose top of the lefthand post was used as a letter box for messages we at the farmhouse did not dare send through the mail, also. I suspect, for letters of the 'international romance quartet' as my husband used to call you and Noel and Mary and Georges."

I was almost sorry I had used the old conjunction of names, when I saw the distressed flush staining Olina's cheeks.

Gate Post Her Letter Box.

"Yes," she said, "Noel and I used that post top, and I think Georges and Mary did also. Ah, how far away that old time seems! I wonder—"

Looking from beneath my lashes I saw that she was too engrossed in the painting to tell me the story she had wished to relate, but anxious to hear anything else I had to say about the painting.

"Did you see the faint dotted line leading from the last note of the word 'Scotland' in the song, down to the gate post, with something like an arrow at the post?" I asked.

"Oh, no!" she said, taking up the painting and scanning it closely, "but I see it now. What do you think it means?"

"It can mean only one thing," I said: "that the writer of the letter wants you to know that he 'took the high road', by air, while you 'took the low road', by boat, and that he will be at The Larches 'afore ye'."

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, November 17.

A most propitious chain of planetary configurations is observed in this day's forecast. The happy combinations presage all kinds of good luck, accomplishment and pleasure, with the most cherished goals of heart's desire, in both business and private affiliations, to be bounteously fulfilled. There may be increase, growth and expansion in all effort, with financial benefits and enhanced prestige and popularity. This should be the objective aimed for and influential persons and those in authority are to be counted upon for support.

Those whose birthday it is may have most happy and lucky fulfillment of cherished aims and ambitions, affecting business, finances, personal popularity and prestige, with pleasant and brilliant romantic or affectional aspirations to heighten the exceptional course of events. It would be wise to cultivate those in high stations for assisting to such ambitious goals, as they should be found unusually hearty in their approbation.

A child born on this day might be expected to be born with the proverbial silver spoon in its mouth. It may be amply endowed for achieving its most ambitious desires.

It takes about 75 pounds of cotton to equip and maintain a soldier for one year, two or three times that much if he's on combat duty.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

CAN'T BE A LONG SUIT

It is not always easy to know whether your partner's lead of an unbid suit against a No Trump contract is from a long suit or a short suit—meaning four cards or more in the former case, three cards or less in the latter. But if your partner is a conventional leader, there is one card which can always be clearly read—the 9-spot. Except when your partner violates the conventions the 9 can never be led from a suit of four cards or more.

A K Q 9	A 10 9 8	Q J 10 9
A K J 9	A 9 8 7*	Q J 9 8
A K 10 9	K Q J 9	Q 10 9 8
A K 9 8*	K Q 10 9	Q 9 8 7*
A Q J 9	K Q 9 8*	J 10 9 8
A Q 10 9	K J 10 9	J 9 8 7*
A Q 9 8*	K J 9 8*	10 9 8 7*
A J 10 9	K 10 9 8	9 8 7 6*
A J 9 8*	K 9 8 7*

There we have the various types of four-card combinations, including the 9. In those marked with an asterisk (*), the cards lower than the 9 may be of any size without influencing the lead.

Conventionally, the lead from any suit of four cards or more is the fourth-best except when holding an "honor-combination"—at least three of the top six cards of the suit, with at least some two of them in sequence. Holding such a combination, the conventional lead is from the touching cards, the top of them except when the touchers include the A and K, when the lead is the K.

Applying that simple formula, the respective leads, from the combinations shown, are the K, K, K or 10, K, Q, 10, 8, J, 8, 10, 7, K, K, or 10, K, J, 8, 10, Q, Q, 10, 7, J, 7, 7 and 6. In not one case is the 9 the conventional lead.

Consequently when you see the 9 led, you know it is from a suit of three cards or less. Usually it will be the top of a doubleton or trebleton, in which case your partner probably has chosen it for one of three reasons—first, the bidding scared him away from his longer suit or suits; second, his hand is so weak he thought he had better try to hit your suit; third, he has tenace-position honors in other suits, from which he does not like to lead. Rarely, it may be a singleton.

Sometimes, the 9 lead may be the under-lead of some honor in a trebleton, to hold the honor and thus possibly knock off one of declarer's lower honors later. But you may be sure the suit is not as long as four cards, unless he has gone tricky on you.

AUSTRALIANS LEARN NEED FOR SPEED FROM U. S. ARMY OFFICER

(By International News Service)

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA —"Here's a requisition for a hearse—in a hurry."

"There's a plane going north in an hour. They want 100 cartons of cigarets and 250 boxes of wax matches."

"Air corps headquarters want to know how their fire-fighting trucks are coming along."

"How soon can we get a Silver Star engraved for a pilot down from Darwin?"

These requests are typical of the barrage that descends upon Captain E. N. Loeb, of Chicago, Illinois, each day. He received the above selection in less than five minutes.

Loeb is quartermaster purchasing officer for the U. S. army "somewhere in Australia."

He does most of his buying from Australian tradespeople. By doing so he takes advantage of reverse lend-lease, saves shipping, and, more important, he gets what he wants faster.

For speed is all important to an army at war. Australian business men have discovered that the U. S. army waits for no man. Those who said they would have to consult their board when asked to manufacture certain items they'd never dreamed of making, lost orders.

Here are some of the items Loeb bought or ordered made during one day recently: the city's whole supply of fans, gloves for American nurses, whistles, doughmaking machinery, garbage cans, butchers' saws, hundreds of rubber stamps (some red tape is necessary), and thousands of thumb tacks—again the city's whole available supply.

In addition he arranged to have some officers' quarters furnished, completed a deal with a ship in port for its excess food, arranged for the retreading of hundreds of automobile tires (the army is rubber conscious too), and the repairing of several dozen typewriters.

All this is giving Australian industry a tremendous fillip, teaching manufacturers that they can accomplish things they had regarded as impossible or, even more typically, as "too much trouble."

And if that were not enough for Loeb, he has another job.

He is assistant graves registration officer!

FINDS WAACS CAN TAKE IT

Women 'Soldiers' Ready For Rough Life, Do Little Complaining About It.

By JANE COCHRAN

FORT DES MOINES, Ia.—(INS)—The WAAC's get their share of blisters, "charlie horses" and muscle strains. They are soldiers and they have soldier's reactions to drill.

But they're far from "sissie"—they really can "take it," their women doctors declared.

The doctors, Mary L. Moore and Elizabeth Garber, are assigned to the fort as contract surgeons and are under the command of Col. T. E. Harwood, jr., post surgeon.

"We haven't been at all busy since the WAAC's arrived," attractive, dark-haired Dr. Moore said. "We've just had minor ailments such as blisters, colds, and shot reactions. The girls received typhoid, small pox and tetanus injections at once, and naturally it hit some of them pretty hard.

"But the girls are in marvelous physical condition and the training certainly agrees with them."

"We have trouble keeping the girls in the hospital," Dr. Garber added. "They want to get out just as soon as they get in and get back to their training. But outside of that they are very good patients."

Dr. Moore, of Rifle, Colo., formerly had her own private practice and Dr. Garber had been on the staff of the University of Indiana hospital ever since her graduation from the university medical school.

"Last December we both decided that we wanted to volunteer," Dr. Garber said, "So we put in our applications to the surgeon general and he assigned us to the Women's Army Auxiliary corps. We wanted to do our part and decided this was the best way we could serve."

Any army doctor usually encounters a full share of "gold bricking"—feigning illness to avoid military duty—but the WAAC's don't seem to know the practise exists in the military world, the two doctors said.

"The girls don't come here until they just have to go to bed," Dr. Moore said. "The percentage of girls in the hospital is amazingly small.

"They have to be tough or they couldn't take the training, but they're under a terrific tension."

Dr. Moore is 30, and Dr. Garber, blond and brown-eyed, is 26. They expect to be joined soon by more women doctors who will be staff members of the Post hospital.

No rest for the wicked. Or is it the weary?

In this case it must be "weary," for the Mansfield high school athletes who have just completed a somewhat dreary season, could very well be weary, but no one has called them wicked yet.

And those weary Bengals of the greensward who also have a leaning toward the hardwood will be getting no rest, for Coach Vern Hoffman is calling them to basketball practice tonight.

Hoffman already has had some of his basketball squad working out, players who were not busy in football, and thought his cagers were coming along in good style.

So not so many evenings ago he sent his sophomores against the upper classmen on his squad, and the sophomores won 18-8 in a short scrimmage.

It was a performance which convinced Hoffman his team will need a lot of work before it opens the season at Columbus South on Dec. 4.

With spirit the sophs are all imbued
But they shouldn't treat those guys so rude.

This year's high school basketball team, like the football team, will be comparatively green, with only one regular, Dean Hahn, returning from last year's cage squad.

Hoffman will have tall Andy Lameraux, who subbed in the latter part of last season for Paul Dietzel at center, but the Tyger tutor is thinking of moving Andy to a forward position.

Fortunately Hoffman's team will have more time to prepare for its opener than did the Tygers of last winter who had only one week between the close of the gridiron campaign and the opening of the cage schedule.

Most of last year's team were football players, and it took them several weeks to lose their football legs—legs more accustomed to hard driving than to the nimble stepping required by the court game.

Make-up of the Tyger quintet is wide open, and there should be a pretty scramble for position before the starting lineup is picked.

Me, I like this basketball. We don't have to sit out in 22 degree weather on Friday nights to watch this game.

Providence Reds Smother Lions

(By United Press)

The Providence Reds scored four goals in the first and third periods to smother the Washington Lions, 9-4, in an American Hockey league game last night

Demarco and Horeck each tallied two goals to pace the Reds' assault while Phillips turned in two goals and an assist to lead the Lions.

The Buffalo Bisons scored in every period to trim the Eagles, 4-2, at New Haven Buffalo put over one in the first period and then took a lead they never lost with two in the second Rumstad's second goal of the night in the third sewed up the game

The Hershey Bears and Capitols battled to a 1-1 overtime tie at Indianapolis. Luzon gave Hershey the first score at 1:25 of the third period, but Brown tied it up for the Caps at 2:02 of the same period

L. Church Takes Rifle Club Match

L. Church led the Mansfield Muzzle Loader Rifle club in its Saturday shoot with a 66.6 percentage in the 30-yard off-hand event. J. Adams had 46.6 and E. Adams 26.6.

Church and E. Wagner carried away the turkeys in a special one-shot event

E. Adams took the string measure match with a 2.85 inch string for three shots. E. Wagner had 3.50 and J. Adams 3.67.

* * *

Shooting for groups in the 50-yard rest shoot, J. Lee was first with a 1.25 measure. J. Adams had 1.31 and T. Nelson 1.48. In the string measure matches E. Adams was first with a 1.60 string, J. Baldinger had 2.15, and also 2.80 for third.

VICKROY PICKED

Buckeyes Prep for Michigan

Loss of Tommy James Complicates Problem.

By JOHN COLBURN

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio State's battering Bucks today found their work cut out for them—beat Michigan to win the Western conference football championship.

Just how difficult that task may be, however, is reflected in the 32 to 20 pasting that Michigan gave strong Notre Dame Saturday while Ohio was moving into undisputed first place in the conference by trouncing Illinois 44 to 20 at Cleveland.

A sell-out crowd of 70,000 is anticipated for Saturday in Ohio stadium to see Michigan and Ohio resume a scoring duel that started last year in a 20-all deadlock.

If Ohio trims Michigan it will repeat its 1939 performance of winning the championship with one conference loss on its record. Ohio was beaten by Wisconsin Oct. 31.

The Bucks are preparing for the championship battle without the services of their newly discovered climax runner, Halfback Tommy James of Massillon.

James, a red-haired, 160-pound speedster, sprinted 76 and 33 yards for touchdowns against Illinois, then suffered a shoulder dislocation when knocked out of bounds on the frozen gound in the second period.

James' injury put George Slusser, pass-throwing ace from Massillon, in the position of having to alternate at left halfback for Paul Sarringhaus and at right halfback for Les Horvath

It also complicated further Coach Paul Brown's halfback problem, aggravated by injuries in the Pittsburgh game. Besides James, halfbacks on the sidelines with injuries are: Bill Durtschi of Galion, the team's best punter, Thomas Cleary of Cleveland, Bob Frye of Crestline and Paul Selby of Columbus.

Durtschi may play some Saturday, but the others are out of action for the season.

While the long runs of James and Horvath, who sprinted 36 yards, and Sarringhaus who covered 47 yards for a touchdown in receiving his first pass of the season, thrilled the crowd of 68,656, it was Ohio's line play that made possible much of the triumph

Expect Rickey To Name Pilot

Durocher War Status Leaves Leo Out.

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK — (UP) — Branch Rickey is expected to name this week the Brooklyn Dodgers' manager But at this writing the prospective leader's identity is the major mystery of the hot stove league.

Rickey became new general manager of the Dodgers on Oct. 29, but as yet he has given no indication by word or deed as to his choice for pilot.

And strangely enough it's not positive yet that Lippy Leo Durocher will not continue in the flatbush managerial berth, which he occupied for the past three seasons.

During the World series the report came out that Durocher would not be available as pilot for the Dodgers next season because he was going into service—was after a commission in the Navy. Now Durocher brands that report as entirely without foundation. He says he would like to pilot the Dodgers again next season, unless he is drafted

Because of Leo's war status, most of the hot stove guessers have tossed Durocher out of consideration and are concentrating on such notables as Billy Herman, Freddie Fitzsimmons, Frankie Frisch, Burt Shotten, Charles Dressen and Ray Blades Some observers believe tht Dolph Camilli was angling for the job when he announced that he was quitting the Dodgers to be available for the managership of a Pacific Coast league club

Fitzsimmons, Herman and Camilli would be popular choices among the fans and players, but it is doubted if shrewd Rickey would risk handing the post to an inexperienced pilot during Rickey's first year in the Brooklyn front office. Hence Frisch, Shotten, Dressen and Blades are regarded as more likely candidates.

However all these names are mere shots in the dark—mere guesses Personally, we do not know who it will be, and for once—with great reluctance—we refrain from making any prediction.

Lead Iowa Seahawks To Successful Season

Victors over Kansas, Northwestern, Minnesota, Michigan, Indiana and Fort Knox, the U. S. Navy Pre-Flight school eleven, the Seahawks, of Iowa City, Ia., are enjoying a very successful season. Coached by Lieut. Col. Bernie Bierman, ex-Minnesota mentor, the Seahawks are led by two former Ohio State backs, Dick Fisher and Jim Langhurst; End Mal Kutner, ex-Texas All-American, and George Svendson, end from Minnesota. Notre Dame is the only team which has beaten the Seahawks who still must play Nebraska, Ohio State, Missouri and the North Carolina Cadets.

Talk Swings To Bowl Tilts

Ohio-Michigan Rated Better Than Bowls.

NEW YORK—(AP)—That interesting point in the football season, when most of the talk swings to bowls and bowl oponents is here again but it's just so much chatter to the folks around the Big Ten conference, where they play their games in season and quit when December rolls around

The Big Ten, with its policy against post-season games, has the laugh on the promoters of the January classics, for in that loop they play at least one game each week which would fill any bowl in the land any day in the year.

Another in this weekly series is on tap for Saturday when mighty Michigan, which lambasted Notre Dame, 32-20, last week, takes on Ohio State, a team that humbled powerful Illinois, 44-20. It will renew a rivalry that has drawn more than a million fans in the last 15 years.

Minnesota, 27-7 conqueror of Iowa, meets Wisconsin, which tripped Northwestern, 20-19, after losing to Iowa the previous week Indiana goes against Purdue, while Northwestern meets Notre Dame and Illinois tests Great Lakes Naval, 24-0 victor over Marquette, in non-conference games.

In the east, there seems to be nobody left with enough power to find out just how good Boston College really is After crushing Fordham, 56-6, Boston College meets lightly regarded Boston University

Harvard, fresh from a 7-0 victory over Brown, has its annual ivy-clad argument with Yale, which dumped Princeton, 13-6. Princeton plays Army, back on the winning side with a 19-7 win over Virginia Tech After surprising Pennsylvania, 13-7, Penn State takes on Pitt.

Georgia Tech, which kept its record clean by blanking Alabama, 7-0, has Florida as its opponent, while Georgia, 40-0 winner over Chattanooga, smacks into an Auburn team that walloped Louisiana State, 25-7.

Other southeastern headliners find Alabama meeting Vanderbilt and Kentucky playing Tennessee Duke and North Carolina State tangle in the southern loop's best offering.

Texas Christian, which left the Southwest Conference a three-way possibility by stopping Texas, 13-7, meets Rice Baylor, which lost to unbeaten-untied Tulsa, 24-0, goes against Southern Methodist

U. C. L. A., still in position to overhaul Washington State for the Pacific Coast Conference lead, meets a Washington team that held St. Mary's Pre-Flight to a scoreless draw.

Tulsa can sew up the Missouri Valley flag against Creighton.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Ever hear that one about how "Germany" Schulz, Michigan's great center of 1904-08, made an all-American player out of Bill Hollenbach? . . . This is the way Harvard's Dick Harlow tells it When Penn played Michigan in 1908, Schulz knocked out both Penn centers in the first half. A sub lineman was hurriedly instructed how to pass the ball on five plays, and to make sure the quarterback wouldn't try any others, the coach chalked the numbers of those five on the seat of the new center's pants . . . On the first scrimmage, Schulz made the center sit down hard, and when he came up, only one number was legible . . . The quarterback had to keep calling that one—an end run by Hollenbach — and Bill looked so good that he won all-American fame.

MONDAY MATINEE

When he goes overseas for the Red Cross, Freddie Corcoran, the PGA tournament man, wants another peek at Scotland's Troon course . . . 'It was justa run-of-the-mine golf course before the first war," says Fred, "but the RAF used it for a practice bombing field and the craters and natural hazards that resulted made it one of the most difficult and picturesque courses in the world."

SERVICE DEPT.

Camp Lee, Va., which had to cancel an ambitious grid schedule this fall, is organizing a team to play Camp Pickett for the Virginia service championship at Petersburg, Dec. 6. Tony Ruffa and Aubrey Gill, former Duke players, will be co-coaches . . . Col. Heinie Miller of the marines, former NBA president, is boosting Sergt. Raymond "Whizzer" White of the Norfolk Naval operating base as a guy who might become a real good heavyweight if he'd learn some boxing to go with his punch.

MAKING A HIT

Earl Ruby of the Louisville Courier Journal tells this one about a football coach who was trying his best to get the players worked up for a big game . . . The day of the game the coach failed to appear . . . The kids were donning their uniforms when the phone in the dressing room rang . . . "I'm in the hospital," came the coach's voice over the wire "I got run down by an automobile filled with our opponents. Think they tried to kill me. Go in there and win that game for your old coach." . . . The kids won easily and an assistant coach hurried to the hospital with the news . . . "It worked, boss," he shouted. "We won easy. Get up and let's celebrate." . . . "Celebrate, h——," moaned the coach. "I really got hit."

GALION JIM SECREST SCORES SIX TIMES

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Sophomore Halfback Jim Secrest of Galion, O., scored six touchdowns and one extra point Saturday to lead the University of Rochester to a 59-0 victory over Hobart in a season-closer.

Secrest, one of the east's leading scorers, tallied on runs of 60,47, 46, 44, 17 and 13 yards to lead Rochester to its seventh victory in eight starts.

Bears Swamp Packer Eleven

Cleveland Rams Roll Over Detroit Team.

(By United Press)

The Chicago Bears, nearest thing to the country's perfect football team, were only a slim mathematical chance away from the Western division crown in the National Professional league today. Unless the unexpected happens in their remaining three games they are certain to meet the Washington Redskins or Pittsburgh Steelers for the league championship.

The Bears rolled over the Green Bay Packers, last formidable opponent in their path, 38-7, Sunday, while the Redskins assured themselves at least a tie for the eastern title by whipping the Giants, 14-7, at New York while the second-place Steelers were idle.

The Redskins, with eight victories and one defeat, can lose both remaining games and still deadlock the Steelers, who have five wins and three losses, even if the Steelers win their three remaining contests.

Meanwhile the Bears still have to meet Detroit, Cleveland and the Cardinals, none of which should threaten the Bears' string of eight victories this season. Green Bay, Western runner-up, must tackle the Giants, Philadelphia Eagles and Steelers. Green Bay has six wins and two defeats.

The Rams walloped the Detroit Lions, 27-7, at Cleveland and the Philadelphia Eagles scored their second win in 10 starts by tripping the Dodgers, 14-7, at Brooklyn.

The Rams handed the Lions their ninth straight setback before 4,029 spectators. Cleveland scored at least once in every period but the second while Detroit's only touchdown came on an 80-yard gallop by Lloyd Cardwell, former Nebraska star now a Detroit coach, on the first play of the game.

Northern And Cincy Sparkle

Polar Bears Win Ohio Conference Honors.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Cincinnati and Ohio Northern today demanded the attention of those Ohio football fans dazzled by Ohio State university's performance.

Cincinnati is undefeated in state competition, and has only two games—in which it is the favorite—to play.

Ohio Northern is champion of the Ohio conference.

Outside the rampaging Ohio Staters, who crushed Illinois 44 to 20 at Cleveland Saturday and can win the Big Ten title by beating Michigan this week, Cincinnati appears to be the state's outstanding eleven on the basis of its 20 to 0 shutout of Dayton.

Cincinnati has lost only two games, both to big-time out-of-state foes—Georgia and Tennessee. It has yet to play Xavier and Miami, but neither the Musketeers nor the Indians appear capable of pulling an upset.

Ohio Northern beat Heidelberg 15 to 0 to repeat its 1934 performance of winning an undisputed Ohio conference championship. Last year, it split top honors with Bowling Green and Case.

Northern's high scoring offensive ran up 109 points to the oppositions 19 in winning five league games and tying one without a defeat.

Millard "Lefty" Murphy, who coached the Polar Bears, is a newcomer to the conference. He coached Ada high school last year before succeeding Harris Lamb, who resigned.

Only one game remains to be played in the conference, that between Denison and Wittenberg Saturday at Granville

Cincinnati tackles Xavier Saturday in the traditional clash between those backyard Cincinnati rivals. Xavier lost last Saturday 20 to 14 to Ohio U., which was beaten earlier by Cincinnati, 26 to 7.

With 15 of Ohio's 34 football-playing colleges through with the gridiron sport for 1942, here's the remaining schedule:

AWAIT PENALTY FOR TREASON

Three Chicago Couples Face Punishment Ranging From Prison Term to Death.

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO—Three middle-aged Chicago couples, convicted of treason against the United States, awaited sentence in their jail cells today under heavy guard.

Federal Judge William J Campbell indicated he would fix next Friday their punishment which ranges from five years in prison and $10,000 fines to death.

Their conviction in federal court Saturday night—only the second such verdict in 148 years of American history — was brought in after less than three hours deliberation by a mixed jury.

The convicted relatives and friends of the executed Nazi-saboteur, Herbert Haupt, were all German born, naturalized citizens in modest circumstances and without previous criminal records. They were Mr. and Mrs. Hans Haupt, parents of the saboteur; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Froehling, uncle and aunt of young Haupt; and Mr. and Mrs. Otto Weigin, friends of the Haupt family.

The six were charged with giving "aid and comfort" to young Haupt while he laid the groundwork of his plans for sabotage, in which he had been trained in Germany. He and five fellow saboteurs were executed in Washington last Aug. 3. Two others received long prison sentences.

STUDY SHELBY WATER PROBLEM

Councilmen Meet Tonight To Seek Means of Boosting City's Supply.

SHELBY—City council will determine the best method to correct the critical water shortage in this area during the regular session of the city council today at 7:30 p. m. at the city building.

Consumers here have been asked to avoid unnecessary use of water until the shortage can be overcome. The construction of an 800-foot pipeline from the Ohio Seamless Tube company from the Black Fork river for an auxiliary supply for that plant besides the city wells eased the critical situation but a permanent means of getting more water for city consumption faces the council.

The water level at the city wells has dropped to its lowest point in years due to the shortage of rainfall and increased industrial and commercial demand.

IRREGULARITY CONTINUES TO SHADE MARKET

Scrap Shortage Declared No Longer Factor In Steel Tonnage Production.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Irregular price shifts continued to dominate today's early stock market proceedings.

Up fractionally were Bethlehem, General Foods, Reynolds Tobacco "B" and Corn Products. Lower were General Motors, Western Union, Radio Corp., General Electric, Standard Oil (N. J.) and Johns-Manville.

Boardrooms found some satisfaction in the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that scrap shortage no longer was a factor in current production, sufficient tonnage being provided for immediate needs.

Easing of the scrap situation for the moment, the review added, has not lessened efforts to bring out more dormant supplies and campaigns for collecting this material among industrial sources were being pushed vigorously.

Kaiser Shows How He Builds Liberty Ships

Aided by David A. Oppenheim (right), one of his production managers, shipbuilder Henry J. Kaiser demonstrates with a model how his ships are constructed in record-breaking time. In 10 minutes, using 81 scale-model parts, he put together the 14-foot model of the freighter which his Richmond, Calif., yard recently sent down the ways in 4 days and 15 hours. Kaiser constructed the model before maritime officials and others at the United Seamen's Service center in New York City.

HIKES 32 MILES AT 82

FORT WORTH, Tex.—(U.P.)—Bob Sullivan's gait was a little slower than usual—but there was a reason. The day before, the wiry little man had celebrated his 82nd birthday by hiking to Dallas—32 miles away—and was stiff from the long walk, but he didn't give in to it. He was up bright and early and took a walk to limber up.

Saw Hank about noon. He was just back in camp from a morning on the rifle range. Squinting through a gunsight. Holding a lively, bucking Garand rifle on the target again and again. But at the camp canteen my frosty lift scored the bull's-eye with Hank.

Had a date with Bill in the afternoon. He'd been "downstairs" all day, loading coal. Sweaty, back-breaking work. Vital to the war. Vital to millions of families this winter. That's why I was glad to be on hand to give him a "quick-up."

Met Betty on the swing shift. She'd been running a precision drill for hours. Neck bent! Attention fixed! But when recess time came, I turned it into a pleasant bit of relaxation that made her keen for the job again.

So it goes . . . round the clock. More than a million and a half times each hour, Americans reach for soft drinks. Americans who are working, fighting, going all-out to win the war.

That means 24-hour duty for me. Any minute . . . every minute I'm ready to bring them a lift and a fresh start. Ready to bring them the same quality they've known for years as best by taste-test. And determined to maintain the quality, even if occasionally the quantity runs short.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

(Second of three columns on how the new tax program is affecting Hollywood.)

HOLLYWOOD—While the studio legal lights are wrestling with the legal verbiage of the "$25,000 salary ceiling decree," Hollywood has a number of interesting questions to ponder.

It is beyond question that all big-money contracts in existence between studios and talent — stars, writers, directors, executives — have been effectively deposited in the ashcan. This brings up the question whether studios, not being permitted to pay the talent as agreed, can force the workers to carry out their share of the bargain — by working.

Coons

Samuel Goldwyn in New York declared the movie folk would not work less than before, that they would recognize their duty now to work harder than ever before. There are skeptics here, not, of course for publication.

Actors are notoriously generous in contributing their services for worthy causes (as current war efforts have proved) but they bristle with suspicion at the idea of making movies for free. With further payments to some "frozen" for the rest of the year, they will be working for nothing if they work at all.

And next year? It will be a strange picture. First to mind come the agents, the 10 per cent overlords of the town. They, playing one studio against another, have been the salary boosters for the stars. Next year, with the top earners leveled to $25,000 after taxes, there'll be considerably less scrambling—unless it's for art's sake, a minor consideration in past calculations.

Next year, if a star works for two or three studios will the studios have to get together and decide what proportion of the restricted salary each shall pay? If a star draws the full amount for one picture, will the second and third studios have to reimburse the first for their share of the salary paid—provided the star wants to work more?

Another question raised: After allowances for taxes, insurance and other fixed obligations (do these include relatives supported?) will the star receive substantially less than at present—after all the bookkeeping is done? For, like everyone else, Hollywood people pay last year's taxes out of this year's income. Unless they've religiously set aside funds to meet this year's bill some of them will need powerful allowances in extra salary to pay taxes on their over $25,000 incomes received this year prior to freezing.

The higher mathematicians and legal experts are threshing these things out. Meanwhile its understatement to say that Hollywood is confused. It's groggy.

RATIONING OF HEATING GAS HELD LIKELY

WPB Warns Action Must Come Unless Consumers Make Voluntary Cuts.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—WPB officials indicated today that manufactured and natural gas will have to be rationed in some areas this winter, if current efforts to obtain a voluntary reduction in consumption fail.

Officials said that the situation is most acute in some cities served by manufactured gas, but refused to identify the areas for security reasons.

A serious gas supply situation exists, however, in all sections of the nation.

Herbert S. Marks, acting chief of the WPB power branch, said that no plan of rationing has yet been worked out, but added that "we haven't given up trying to devise a scheme."

In Great Britain, rationing is done on a quota basis with each home entitled to a certain number of units of heat. The units apply to any form of fuel—wood, coal, electricity or gas.

The WPB already has invoked controls short of rationing in an effort to curtail consumption. One of the latest actions was to extend to all gas heating equipment the prohibition against new gas deliveries. The ban previously did not affect small unit heaters.

Officials appealed to consumers to give up such peace-time luxury habits as having two baths a day, filling the tub to overflowing and letting the water run while shaving. Savings also can be effected, they said, by using less water in washing dishes and by cooking foods which require less gas in cooking.

WPB experts said there will be enough gas to meet the absolutely essential needs this winter, if conservation efforts are successful and the current and threatened shortages do not become more pronounced.

The two large natural gas producing states of Texas and Oklahome are exempted from the current residential limitations. Ohio, however, is included.

SHOP EARLY— OR BE SORRY

Merchants Cite Shortage of Help, Say Early Buyers Will Fare Best.

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO—If you're going to resolve to do your Christmas shopping early this year—and then, as in previous years, break your resolution and join the last-minute shoppers — you're going to be mighty sorry.

Merchants suggested today that to save the wear and tear on nerves, the shop-worn and overworked slogan "do your Christmas shopping early," should be considered with deepest earnestness this season. They even argued it was a patriotic duty.

They based their arguments on two principal factors: (A) A shortage of help in the stores and a scarcity of competent extra helpers for the expected rush, and (B), Transportation difficulties, including both the handling of customers and the delivery of their packages.

High school and college students are being recruited in large numbers for temporary positions.

Distributors to retail stores have announced there would be sufficient supplies of most goods but merchants warned that early shoppers would fare best.

WHISPER RAMPAGING ELEPHANT CAME HOME FOR WHISKY TODDY

(By International News Service)

WABASH, Ind —Modoc, the runaway female elephant that alternately terrified and amused the Indiana countryside for more than four days, was back in captivity today.

Just what the enticement was that lured Modoc back to the companionship of her elephant playmates, Empress and Judy, was a matter of some debate.

Some said it was a realization of the comforts of home that came to the truant pachyderm when she was offered 30 loaves of bread, which she tossed into her capacious maw in rapid succession.

Others whispered—and this was a slight reflection on the big toddy," they said. "Didn't Corrine a promise that if she surrendered she would get a really elephantine toddy with six quarts of warm whisky as its base.

"Sure, she knew she'd get the dy," they said. "Didn't 'Corrine' tell her?"

"Corrine," as he is known to circus people, is a huge negro mahout who has the reputation of being able to talk "elephant language" and he had a long conversation with Modoc yesterday.

At any rate, Modoc, who had broken away every previous time when apparently on the verge of capture, smiled wanly at those assembled last night and lumbered submissively up a ramp into the truck where Judy and Empress awaited her on the farm of Claude Kreig near here.

The occasion for her wan appearance was the loss of 800 pounds on her hectic escapade, some loss even for an elephant weighing a ton or more.

Owner Terrell Jacobs feared Modoc might die from her adventure because she rarely paused to eat or drink while she was fleeing her pursuers and, besides, she might have caught a severe cold. The whisky toddy, he explained, was not in the nature of a reward but to fend off the effects of the cold.

OLD ARMORY WALL CRASHES, SCORES HURT

Debris Smashes $20,000 Fire Ladder Just as Flames Are Put Under Control.

(By Associated Press)

BOSTON—In one of the greatest tolls taken by a Boston fire since the turn of the century, six firemen lay dead and two score others were under hospital care today after being pulled from the debris of old Armory hall in Maverick square, East Boston.

Fire Chief Samuel J. Pope said the fire started in grease on the kitchen stove of a restaurant. He estimated damage to the four-story structure at $45,000. In addition, a $20,000 aerial ladder truck was crushed when a wall of the building collapsed.

The fire in Armory hall, once a scene of political rallies and more recently housing a taproom, a restaurant, a liquor store and a dine and dance place known as Luongo's cafe, appeared to be a routine two-alarm blaze when it was discovered at about 2.30 a. m. yesterday.

Firemen apparently had it under control and a number of them had entered the building to quell the remaining flames when a wall on the street side collapsed without warning.

Part of the wall fell inward, causing the death of the six firemen and temporarily trapping others, while the other part tumbled outward, showering debris on firemen on the sidewalk.

Damage $1,000,000 In Store Fire

PONTIAC, Mich. — (INS) — Fire early today destroyed one of Pontiac's largest department stores, causing damage estimated at $1,000,000 and then spread to an adjacent store and threatened other structures.

The blaze broke out in the fourth floor stock room of Chase's department store. Raging uncontrolled despite the efforts of firemen, the fire swept the Chase establishment and ate its way into a Woolworth store next door.

Firemen sought to save a tavern, an apartment building and a grocery which are across the alley from the Woolworth store.

"In Smyrna, I received the first piece of bread in months," Mrs. Calamboyias wrote, "and I kissed and blessed it before I ate it. My youngest son never quite knew the existence of bread and hugs it closely when offered him."

Mrs. Calamboyias said she feared her father and sisters in Greece starved to death. The letter was the first word Mrs. Raptis had received from her sister.

AXIS SENDING MORE TROOPS INTO TUNISIA

Pour Reinforcements By Air and Sea as U. S., British Try For 'Dunkerque.'

man forces in Tunisia to hold on at any cost.

This was the first regular action by United States ground troops against the Germans since the closing days of World War I when the doughboys and their French allies smashed through German defenses along the Meuse river and drove through the Argonne forest in an offensive that ended with the armistice of Nov. 11, 1918.

In the new meeting, the Americans were part of a predominately British assault force under Lieut. Gen. K. A. N. Anderson, who declared he wanted to smash east "as quickly as possible and kick Rommel in the pants" in cooperation with the British Eighth army from Egypt.

Elsewhere on the European-African warfronts:

Field Marshal Rommel was reported still in flight, racing down the road from Bengasi to El Agheila where he was expected to try one more stand on the battlefield where he stopped another British army in 1941—a battlefield more than 500 costly miles from El Alamein, Egypt, and still 400 miles short of the escape port of Tripoli.

For the fourth time this month English-based British bombers brought the war of bomb-wrought ruin home to Italy in a 1,500-mile round trip raid last night on Genoa. It was the RAF's second attack in three nights on the badly-battered naval base and supply port for North Africa.

The Vichy radio broadcast a dispatch from La Linea, Spain, reporting that two Allied battleships, two aircraft carriers, four cruisers and nine destroyers sailed into the Mediterranean from Gibaraltar this morning. Such a force could hit heavily at Axis efforts to open troop reinforcement lanes to Tunisia across the central Mediterranean.

A Moscow broadcast quoting the Turkish newspaper Ikdam said that once the Allies had cleaned the Axis out of North Africa they could be expected to occupy the islands of Crete, Sardinia and Corsica and "make their first jump into Europe via the Italian mainland."

The RAF, meanwhile, announced another destructive blow at the Axis-held Tunis airdrome at dusk Saturday, and further attacks after dark which destroyed six big German planes and left airport buildings ablaze.

Establishment of contact between the British and American assault force from eastern Algeria and the Germans and Italians in Tunisia, keystone to control of North Africa and the narrows of the central Mediterranean, was announced by the Allied-controlled Morocco radio at 9 p. m. Sunday.

It was not disclosed immediately where the fighting had started, but it seemed likely that the powerful Allied force engaged the enemy close to his chief prizes, Bizerte, 70 miles east of the Algerian border, and Tunis, 60 miles southeast of Bizerte and 80 miles from the border.

The Morocco radio said the Axis was working feverishly to get reinforcements by ship and plane through to these positions.

General Anderson's British-American striking force crossed the Tunisian frontier east of the Algerian port of Bone which the Allies took last week. A Vichy broadcast said that parachutists which the Allies dropped at Bone had taken only five minutes to capture Italian troops who landed there.

Admiral Jean Darlan proclaimed himself administrator of French North Africa, where the rest of Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's AEF was consolidating its position swiftly. Darlan appointed Gen. Henri Giraud as commander-in-chief of French forces in North Africa in cooperation with the Allies.

The German-controlled Vichy radio, however, broadcast a declaration in the name of Marshal Petain declaring Darlan dismissed from all military commands and public functions.

Across the Mediterranean large numbers of Vichy troops arrived at Toulon to garrison the naval base which the Germans by-passed in their occupation of southern France for fear that the French fleet there would cross over to the Allies rather than fall into German hands.

The Morocco radio said the Italians had declared a state of siege at Ajaccio and other towns of Corsica as a result of resistance which French garrisons put up against Italian forces occupying the island.

Eisenhower Safe After Perilous Trip

By WES GALLAGHER
(U. S. Correspondent with the A. E. F. in North Africa.)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, Nov. 15—(Delayed) —(AP)— Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. (Ike) Eisenhower gives the impression that he would like to trade his job as supreme commander of the greatest amphibious force ever created for a rifle and a good front-line spot.

The tough, Texas-born commander who, with Admiral Sir Andrew B. Cunningham, escaped with his life recently only because a skillful pilot conquered clouds and mist before gasoline gave out, blurted out the other day: "Hell, I'm not seeing enough of this darn war."

Sixteen hours a day he is at his desk, snapping out decisions with a speed and sure-handedness which excite the envy of all who watch him.

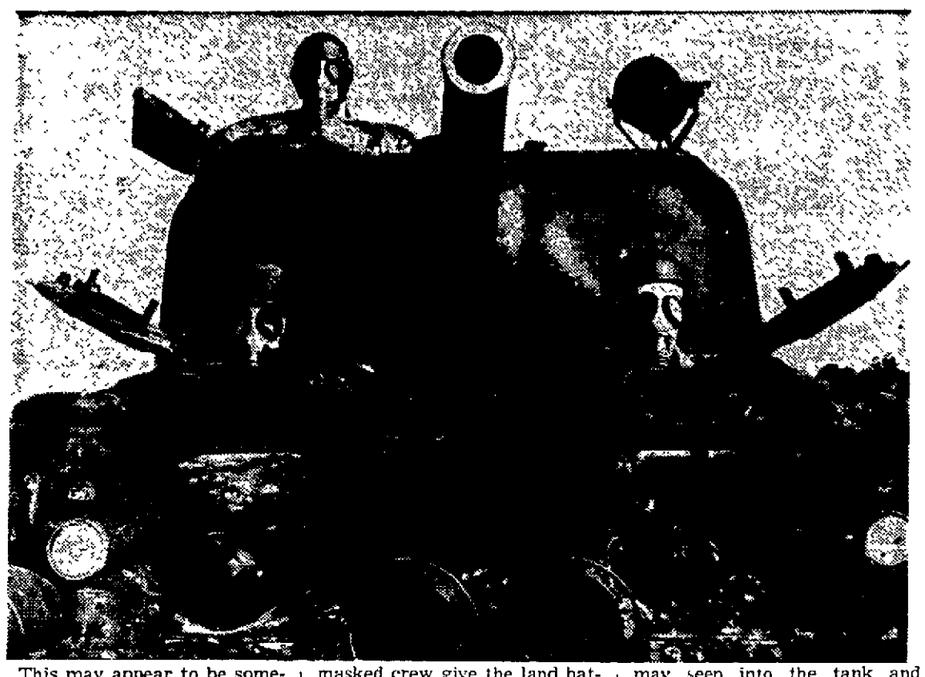

The flying trip which nearly ended in disaster was one of the few occasions on which Eisenhower has been able to break away from headquarters. With Admiral Cunningham, he flew to Algiers in a Flying Fortress to look over the military and political situation.

On the return trip, the plane ran into foul weather and visibility was less than 40 feet. His staff made a frantic effort to order the plane to another field, but the plane already was short of fuel and the order didn't get through.

With clouds and mist almost touching the ground, the pilot, Lieut. A. E. Aenchbacker, brought the plane in and later received a commendatory letter from General Eisenhower.

"My staff was mad as hell at me," the general said later.

This Is A U. S. Tank---Ready For Battle

This may appear to be something from an H. G. Wells nightmare. In reality it's a U. S tank used by the armored forces. The heads of its gas-masked crew give the land battleship a more terrifying appearance. Tank crews must learn to wear their masks under all battle conditions. Gas may seep into the tank and the crew must be able to drive and shoot with masks on. This is a U. S. Army Signal corps photo.

Nazis Build Airfields Near Turkey Frontier

ISTANBUL, Turkey—(Delayed) —(AP)—Germans are using Bulgarian labor to construct three new airfields near Turkey's northwest frontier in Bulgarian-occupied Greece, travelers from the Balkans reported today.

The airfields could serve as defensive bases against Allied landings in Greece, or as offensive bases against Turkey.

The Bulgarian government was said to have forbidden publication in Bulgarian newspapers of any mention of Allied successes in north Africa.

Giraud Says French To Join In Victory

LONDON—(UP)—Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, assuming command of French forces in North Africa, announced today that a great French colonial army would join the Allies in "reaping final victory."

Giraud's appointment by Admiral Jean Francois Darlan, former commander of all French armed forces under the Vichy regime, apparently was the last straw for Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, Vichy chief of government, who announced, according to Havas, French news agency, that Darlan had been deprived of all his functions, including his military command.

FDR Says Training Necessary For Small Nations' Self-Rule

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Training for self-rule is necessary for the "stability of independence" of small nations which will gain freedom after the war, President Roosevelt believes.

Speaking yesterday on the seventh anniversary of the commonwealth of the Philippines, Mr. Roosevelt said he believed the policy of the United States toward the islands was "essentially a part and parcel of the philosophy of and the ideals of the United Nations.

He expressed the "grim determination" and "supreme confidence" of the United States that the Japanese army would be driven from the Philippines "to the last man."

"I like to think that the history of the Philippine islands in the last 44 years provides in a very real sense a pattern for the future of small nations and peoples of the world," the American president said. "It is a pattern of what men of good will look forward to in the future—a pattern of global civilization which recognizes no limitation of religion or of race.

"But we must remember that such a pattern is based on two important factors. The first is that there be a period of preparation, through the dissemination of education and the recognition and fulfillment of physical and social economic needs. The second is that there be a period of training for ultimate independent sovereignty, through the practice of more and more self-government, beginning with the local government and passing through the various steps to complete statehood."

Mr. Roosevelt pointed out that the United States did not attain full national independence until the colonies had passed through the preliminary phases of local and state government.

Killed In Action

Capt. Ray Foltz, 26, shown above, was killed in action Nov. 9 while serving with the Royal Canadian Air Force, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray N. Foltz, 33 Gibson avenue, have been informed. Young Foltz previously had survived a crash landing when the landing gear of his plane was shot away and saved the lives of his crew when the men were forced down in a snowstorm. He joined the Canadian flying forces in March, 1941.

to interview him in his office, and could not be reached by telephone later in the morning.

Asked if the mayor had called him in to discuss the bingo situation, Chief Bell said:

"No, it wouldn't be right to say he called me in."

Asked then if the mayor had stopped in to see him, the chief said only:

"I'm not talking."

Chief Bell's two superiors at City building are Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff and Mayor Locke. Wolff denied that he had issued any orders to the chief concerning the resumption of bingo.

It was evident to the most disinterested observer that the chief was not happy over the situation, and among subordinate members of the force, open displeasure was voiced.

Some members of the force asserted that if one bingo game was to be allowed to run, the "lid" ought to be off games of all kinds.

Commented another:

"Why try to keep others from operating when the 'big shot' gives the nod to a selected one or two?" The officer did not identify the "big shot."

Coincidentally, Sheriff Frank B. Robinson today declared he had no knowledge of the truth of reports that bingo had been resumed at establishments in the county.

One such establishment, reportedly operating under a club set-up, is reported to have been drawing a sizeable contingent of Mansfield bingo-lovers.

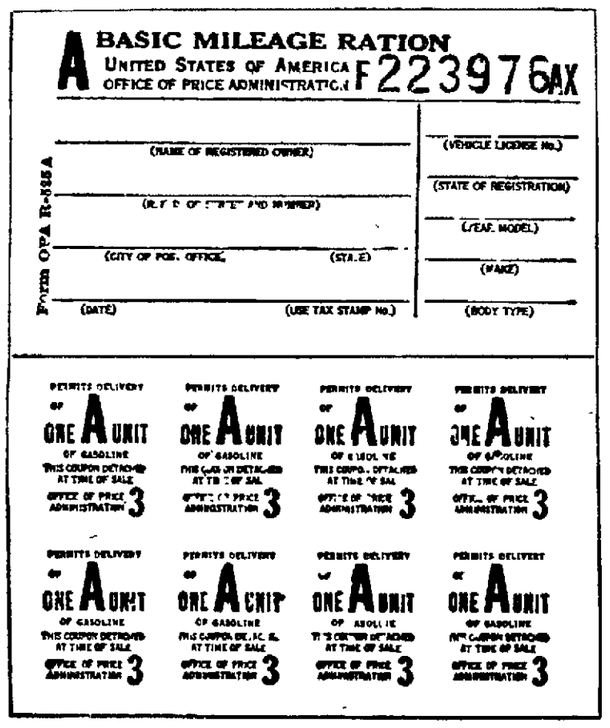

The sheriff expressed the opinion that such a set-up did not legalize bingo, but said he would ask Prosecutor John O'Donnell for an opinion.

Last spring, Mayor Locke declared that bingo couldn't be played "where it could be seen from the street." Some operators then moved to second floors, but the games went on.

Chief Bell's order closing all bingo games, issued Sept. 20, had been generally observed until Saturday night when the Playtime resumed operations.

It is estimated that Japan suffers four minor earthquake shocks every day.

area," the last communique said.

"The current land, sea and air actions in the Solomons islands are the result of a determined effort on the part of the Japanese to recapture positions in the Guadalcanal area.

"The engagements are continuing."

The navy announced last week that both sides have suffered naval losses, but it was considered likely that the commanders in the Solomons have had no time during the last five days to write detailed reports.

A naval spokesman here hinted at the type of fighting going on when he described it as a "hit and run, hide and seek, tough and go" battle.

Hints of the scope of the battle came from the Pacific area. MacArthur's airmen have reported a Japanese invasion fleet "packed to the gunwales" north of Guadalcanal. Dispatches from New Guinea quoted fliers as saying the convoy was so large "we never were able to view the entire thing at one time."

Previous offensives of the Japanese—mainly the one from Oct. 22 to Oct. 27—have been referred to variously as "all-out" and "decisive." Each time the Japanese have been slapped down hard, retired to reform their units and then returned.

This time, however, a naval spokesman said, there is "no question" that the enemy is engaged in a "real effort" to retake the first land taken from them since Pearl Harbor.

The only definite reports of the present fighting came from the Axis radio which invariably exaggerates claims of damage to opponents. Tokyo radio reported that six Allied cruisers and one destroyer were sunk, two cruisers and three destroyers damaged and 19 aircraft shot down. It admitted loss of two destroyers and damage to one battleship.

Americans Poised For Buna Death-Blow

GEN. DOUGLAS M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia —(INS)—American troops were poised tonight to strike a death-blow against the Japanese beach-head at Buna on the northern shore of New Guinea and wipe out the last enemy hopes of a land invasion of the vital Allied base at Port Moresby.

As Allied troops plunged through the raging Kumusi river, now at flood stage and the last obstacle on the road to Buna, the announced presence of American forces with the Australian jungle fighters who launched the attack bore testimony to the close relationship among all commands in the southwestern Pacific.

The situation is similar to that in North Africa, where rapid advance was made possible by coordination among all branches.

MacArthur's advance broke the last vestige of Japanese offensive power in New Guinea. More than that, it kept a specially trained Japanese group of coastal landing warfare experts under Lieut. Gen. Tomatore Horii so occupied and so hard-pressed they were unable to shift their urgently needed specialists from New Guinea to the Solomons, thereby easing by thousands of troops the enemy onslaught against Guadalcanal.

Japs Revise Claims Of U. S. Losses

NEW YORK—(AP)—A Japanese imperial headquarters in a revised report of the Oct. 26 naval battle east of the Solomons asserted today the Japanese sank one battleship, two aircraft carriers identified as the U. S. S. Enterprise and Hornet, another large-type aircraft carrier, three cruisers and one destroyer.

A. U. S navy communique Oct. 26 reported the United States destroyer Porter was sunk by enemy action, one U. S. aircraft carrier was severely damaged, and other United States vessels reported lesser damage when a Pacific fleet carrier task force exchanged air attacks with strong Japanese forces northeast of Guadalcanal. Then on Oct. 31 the navy announced that the carrier, which was not identified, was destroyed after she had been heavily damaged by Japanese bombers and torpedo planes.

Except for the loss of the carrier and destroyer, there has been no U. S. or other Allied announcement to confirm the sweeping Japanese claim.

In addition to the vessels reported sunk, the Japanese said three unidentified warships and three destroyers were heavily damaged.

In the new announcement there was no mention of Japanese casualties. The Oct. 27 version, however, said two Japanese aircraft carriers and a cruiser received slight damage. The U. S. navy department announcement on Oct. 26 on the other hand said two Japanese carriers, two heavy cruisers and one light cruiser were damaged. On Oct. 31 it was stated one of the two Japanese carriers had been badly damaged and one of the cruisers also was listed as badly damaged and a battleship was hit.

little piece of peanut politics," asserted Senator Connally (D., Tex.). "All constitutional guarantees and safeguards are to be crushed and destroyed."

Connally assaulted the Democratic leadership for insisting upon action on the bill during war when unity is being sought.

It is wholly unconstitutional and has been so for 150 years," said Connally. "One of its chief sponsors is Earl Browder, head of the Communist party and lately in prison for a felony. The bill is purely political.

"It is politics on the lowest possible scale. It is politics intended to disrupt and divide the Democratic party, and yet it is proposed in a senate, the majority of which is composed of Democrats."

Senator Peppard (D., Fla.), sponsor of the bill, vehemently replied to criticism of fellow southern senators.

He declared that failure of the senate to bring the bill to a vote would show the world "that we really do not believe in democracy and are not able to make democracy work."

Senate leaders sent a hurried call to absent members to return to Washington, with the result that they expected no trouble in keeping a majority of the senate on hand this week. This would obviate a repetition of the action of Saturday in ordering arrest of senators in order to establish a quorum.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1942.

To those who say that a depression after this war is inevitable, I say not only that it is avoidable but that it will be avoided. But it will be avoided only if we control prices. Conversely, if we don't control prices and inflation, we can't avoid a depression.—Prof. E. W. McFarland.

Community War Chest 'Over the Top'

THE SPIRIT of Mansfield and its people is never shown in a finer way than by the willing response which invariably comes when an appeal is made to give to some worthy cause designed to benefit others.

It is gratifying, but not surprising, to learn that the Community War Chest is "over the top" by a nice margin, with some contributions yet to be added.

With all the other obligations that people are being called upon to meet it is no small matter for residents of Mansfield and Richland county to subscribe more than $150,000 to an all-purpose fund which is to be apportioned among twenty-two agencies, each of which has specific work to do along patriotic, welfare or humanitarian lines.

Looking back at a week of intensive effort to reach the Community War Fund goal, fixed as the minimum amount that would cover essential needs, an outstanding feature is the earnestness with which hundreds of people in this city and county carried through the task of preparation and solicitation, and the almost universal readiness of response on the part of thousands of contributors—many in larger amounts than ever before.

It would be impossible to give individual recognition to all who helped, in one way or another, and any credit that is accorded the capable and tireless work of Fred B. Hout, major general of the campaign, should be understood to extend through to all who served with him, for leadership is ineffective unless accompanied by enthusiastic co-operation of everyone to whom duties are assigned.

Some of the bright spots in the campaign were furnished by individual cases in which contributions were more than could reasonably be expected from persons in low income groups—and some of the dark spots appeared in the attitude of a few persons in certain other groups who refused, sometimes almost impudently, to make any contribution.

It is interesting to note that nine of the eleven Mansfield divisions went above their quotas, these being the Industrial, Construction, Retail, Financial, Professional, Food, Auto, Public Service and Women's division—while two fell below, the Education and Public Employes divisions.

In the matter of the Education division, which includes teachers and all school employes and which was assigned a quota of $3,250, it is worthy of mention that pennies and nickels contributed by school children amounted to $322.05, with two schools still to report, or approximately 10 per cent of the quota for that division.

Recognized as a part of this community's wartime activities, completion of the War Chest campaign now opens the way for other necessary action on "the home front," for there can be no lull in civilian support of the war effort while thousands of Mansfield and Richland county boys are engaged in the harder tasks of military service.

Service In Ranks Helps Officers

THE TRADITIONALLY most unpopular character in the army is the second lieutenant. He it is who upholds the standards of the service by lecturing privates for not saluting, or leaving their coats unbuttoned, or other breaches of military etiquette. Even the formidable top sergeant is less disliked, because he is at least an enlisted man, and knows the enlisted man's habits of thought. Officers are not unpopular as such. The higher the officer, the better he is apt to be liked.

The reason is of course that the lieutenant fresh out of West Point is usually young and unused to handling men. By the time he has climbed a little way up the ladder, he has overcome both these handicaps. If he had served in the ranks, his education would have been quicker.

All this is in the mind of Lieutenant-General Ben Lear, commander of the Second army and famed as a disciplinarian. He would make a year's service in the ranks a prerequisite for admission to West Point. He thinks that in no other way can the future officer learn so much about the men he will command.

Some officers have done this. A notable case was General James G. Harbord, Pershing's chief of staff and present chairman of the Radio Corporation of America. He began as a private, and climbed to the second highest post in the army.

Driving 'As Usual' Wastes Rubber

AN EFFORT is being made, by means of illustrations, to show motorists how many years cars can run on rubber if driven "as usual," and how much longer by conservation and recapping.

At the end of 1942, say the car symbols, there will be five whole car units left on the "conservation" side, and about four and three-fourths on the haste and carelessness side. At the end of 1943, care and recapping leave us with four and a half, as opposed to one and three-fourths if they are driven "as usual." By the end of 1944, there are still almost four on the good side and only a fraction in the careless column. In 1945 there will be two and almost a whole car-unit left for those who are careful, none on the other side at all.

Each symbol represents about 5,000,000 cars, so at the end of 1945 there will still be 13,500,000 of the present cars left with tires if every driver is cautious and thrifty.

Many Uses for 'Surplus' Milk

NO MILK is ever wasted, says a dairy company. There cannot be any such thing as "surplus milk" in the sense of an overproduction which cannot be sold. At some times of year there may be more milk produced on any day than can be used as fresh milk that day. But the overflow goes immediately into butter and cheese, which are eaten later. There is plenty of demand for all dairy products, here and overseas.

The company also relates that a city of a million uses 400,000 quarts of milk every day—if the bottles were stood on end touching each other, they'd reach 22 miles. It reminds the purchaser that the milk didn't exist day before yesterday and will all be gone by day after tomorrow.

PETAIN UNDERSTANDS PERFECTLY—NOW

Question of Army Size Debated, Difficult to Maintain 'Arsenal'

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—There is raging in Washington today the same controversy precisely that raged back in 1917—whether we should be the arsenal of democracy, or do the fighting ourselves. The pros and cons are so little different as to be amazing, though actually the situations are as different as day and night.

The problem then, as now, was whether we would be content to raise only a comparatively small army, and devote the major part of our energy to equipping and feeding the soldiers of the Allies, or whether we should devote a larger percentage of our energy to raising our own army, and equipping it.

The phrases used today are different, but the point is precisely the same. It will be recalled that at first the Allies wanted only a "token" army, back in 1917. "Return Rochambeau's visit" was the slogan used by French Ambassador Jusserand.

LATER ON the plea changed. The reason for this was simple. Russia went out of the war, leaving Britain and France to struggle alone. The French and British losses were terrific. Their statements contended that they were being bled white, and urged more and more American troops. We responded and, at the end, had two million men in France and two million more in this country ready to go.

But it is not to this 1918 crisis that the present condition is similar. It is to the earlier period, when all Britain and France thought they wanted was plenty of guns, planes and ammunition. Actually, this country never did equip its own armies, or supply the Allies, with planes or artillery, though we did eventually send plenty of men. Our own troops were equipped with artillery already manufactured by the Allies, and the war ended without substantial delivery of American made planes.

This time we are doing both—sending men and sending equipment for our Allies. The argument is as to the proportion. Obviously, as has been pointed out on Capitol Hill, we cannot raise an army of the size which the army chiefs and Secretary of War Stimson have been talking about if we are also to continue supplying the Allies with equipment. That becomes just too large a task.

THE QUESTION is also asked where we could possibly use an army of from seven to 15 million men, to give the two extremes cited by high army officials. Would it not be better, critics ask, to content ourselves with a much smaller army, say about the size we trained in the last war—four million men—and devote the remainder of our military production to keeping our Allies equipped?

That is such a sound question that the writer has not heard a satisfactory answer to it from the advocates of a much larger army. The answer which is made to it, in Washington arguments, seems hardly calculated to appeal to the minds of most Americans. It is that we should have so strong and perfectly equipped an army inside the United States, in addition to everything we send outside, that if we lose the war abroad we could still defend ourselves against any attack.

With Germany and Japan dominating the oceans, after the victory this program visualizes, we would hardly be in a happy position even with a very strong army! It would seem wiser to make sure of the defeat of Germany and Japan while we had strong well equipped Allies to do most of the fighting!

Health and Diet

Serious War Health Problem.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WHENEVER there is a great shifting of population, there arise, ipso facto, new health problems. The United States is facing such a situation now.

When shifting of population occurs in disorganized districts, such as the terrain of war-torn Europe and Asia, the result, as it needs only a glance at history to show, is likely to be a flare-up of world wide epidemics—the black death, cholera, and just yesteryear, malignant influenza.

Here, where no such real dislocation has occurred—no bombing of water supplies, sewage disposal plants, no destruction of existing housing or serious disruption of medical service or food supply—we need anticipate nothing of that kind, but we should bend all our energies to see to it that in every possible way health agencies should be reenforced, augmented, preserved and stabilized.

Housing Problem

Unquestionably the most serious situation created by the emergency is the housing problem. Actual, not imaginary, instances of cities with a population of 15,000 in 1940 now having 30,000, and still growing. Housing, plumbing, sewage disposal for this addition is going on. Approximately 440,000 new dwelling units are occupied, or in construction at the present time.

Local health authorities should be, but often are not, consulted about these projects. In one eastern city a new residential development went up until it was found all the cellars were flooded. This could have been avoided by draining the swamp which was below the building site the strangers picked out. Local authorities should also be supported by public opinion in preventing mercenary activities.

A shifting population brings with it the menace of the disease carrier—typhoid, diphtheria, smallpox, meningitis, etc. For the first three mentioned, individual vaccination is fully protective and every citizen has a duty to have himself or herself now vaccinated in that way.

Medical care is provided in many new housing communities by having clinics established on the grounds, thus avoiding the necessity of a long bus trip and possibly additional walk to the hospital facilities in town. Temporary but adequate hospitals on the grounds are also provided in some places. The more of this that is done, the better.

Hospital and medical care, with the shortage due to the demands of the armed forces, does not seem to me as pressing as it has to others. We have had quite an oversupply of both during the past decade and if hospital rooms and doctors are now reserved only for absolutely necessary illness, I believe little serious injustice will be done. Let the neurotics weep at the wailing wall.

In the newly expanded industrial communities this is a much more serious problem. One important point is that state medical boards should for the emergency forego their examinations if they want older physicians, who are the only ones available and who can not be expected to be able to pass the tests on basic subjects, to come to their new communities.

Timely Editorial

Hopkins Arouses Resentment.

The more Harry Hopkins' new order for American living as he has outlined it in the current issue of the American Magazine is pondered, the more its utter impertinence is understood. Upon what meat does this Hopkins feed, that he has the temerity to lay down living habits around the clock for every American over the age of 18?

Who is this man? Where does he get his authority to point his finger at every person in the nation and say this "does mean you . . . it isn't just talk?" Who ever gave Harry Hopkins a vote which entitles him to sit in the Abraham Lincoln suite at the White House and order the arbitrary regimentation of 130,000,000 free Americans? For that matter, where did Mr. Hopkins ever win by notable public service the right to speak to, or for, the American people in the White House or out of it?

A program laid down by Harry Hopkins carries no weight with the American people. It arouses not a realization of what must be faced, but only antagonism and resentment.—Columbus Dispatch.

Interpreting the War News

Nazis Encounter Bleak November As United Nations Take Offensive

—By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

NOVEMBER has shown a bleak face to German conquest hopes in other years and this November is no exception.

November saw the kaiser's glory dreams burst like a soap bubble in 1918. His strutting successor as a war lord has admitted that in 1941 the vision of a Nazi-dominated world was close to utter disaster in Russia and saved, not by Hitler, but by providence.

It was a slightly humbled Hitler who gave credit only a few weeks ago to some more potent force than his own intuitive military genius for that 1941 escape. He capped the admission, however, with assurances to his German listeners that he, not providence, had seen to it that there would be no repetition of that dread winter of 1941 for Nazi Germany.

Yet this November winter is again upon Hitler's dangerously far-spread armies in an unconquered Russia. Moreover, Anglo-American forces of ever expanding size and power are confronting him from across the Mediterranean. A complete Axis rout in Africa is in the making. Italy, the soft under belly of the Axis dragon, is exposed to Allied attack.

Hitler's vaunted air power so far has failed him, failed even to protect German cities from a terrible and continuous air drubbing. His U-boats have wrought mightily at sea but not mightily enough. The presence in French Africa of a great and growing American-British army sufficiently shows who still rules the Atlantic.

To meet an emergency the scope of which he has not yet measured, Axis armies are again on the march in France and the Balkans, not to offensive but to defensive assignments. Axis collaborationism in France is dead or dying and Colonial France is back in the war as an Allied recruit.

WHAT this may mean to even further re-shuffling of the war odds in the Mediterranean still is unclear.

Pacific repercussions of the changed war scene in Europe and the Near and Middle East also are yet to be fully assessed. The effect on India to ease Allied tension cannot yet be appraised, but the hope that the hour for reconquest of Burma from the Japanese has been brought a long stride closer is justified.

The one outstanding fact in the Pacific war theater traceable to the new and ominous developments for the Axis in Russia and the Mediterranean this November is that Hitler's Japanese accomplice also has failed him.

At the moment when he most needs a far eastern diversion—a Japanese assault on Russia in Siberia or a Japanese power thrust at Australia or its ocean life lines—Japan has appeared up to now, too busy with defense herself to answer his pleas. The week-end, however, brought an announcement from Berlin that heads of all Japanese missions to Europe had been assembled in the German capital since Nov. 10. Such a parley at this time suggested Hitler might be renewing pressure on his Japanese ally.

Just what all the swift developments of this November will add up to is beyond conjecture. The war is not over, but it has turned a significant corner. Allied hopes of ultimate and complete victory are based now on things more tangible than an undaunted will to win.

Cabinet Shakeup Appears Likely

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Vice President Henry A. Wallace's diagnosis of the recent election result as a Roosevelt administration victory, because the Democrats did not lose control of the senate and house of representatives, has caused a considerable amount of smiling in Washington. To be more exact, they are not really smiles, so far as the Democrats are concerned. They're wry grins, instead, which don't signify satisfaction, but merely imply the would-be smilers' contention that a severe kick in the pants isn't necessarily fatal.

There is, however, a substantial bit of argument to the effect that present members of the cabinet ought to offer their resignations in a cluster.

This proposition's advanced by some Democrats as well as Republicans.

The Republicans themselves don't insist that all such resignations be accepted. They think, though, that several of 'em should be. The Republicans say so on general principles; the Democrats as well wishers toward their own party.

Frances Perkins is panned especially:

"Ma" may be done a certain amount of injustice.

The dope is that her labor department has been unduly favored at the expense of agriculture, and that the farmers are on her trail to a degree that makes her unfairly conspicuous. Yet, of course, the farmers complain that Agricultural Secretary Wickard hasn't taken adequate care of 'em.

Morgenthau Another.

Treasury Secretary Mongenthau, it goes almost without saying, is on the pan for current taxes.

War and Navy Secretaries Stimson and Knox naturally are accused of derelictions in their respective fields of operation.

State Secretary Hull apparently has functioned pretty competently. He hasn't quite lined up Argentina and Chile, but he's gradually acquiring 'em.

Justice, the postoffice and the interior aren't factors.

The interior and commerce divisions will be, after the war, when readjustments start, but, as yet, they don't signify.

There probably will be some sort of a post-war readjustment department, too, later—a department of which Owen D. Young, today's chairman of the General Electric company, promises to be the head, as secretary of transportation. That's assuming, to be sure, that the current political authority's still in power then. It's reckoning on it as potent among peacetime influences. It's slated to co-ordinate railroading, motor transport and aviation.

The army and navy are liable to be defensively compacted together, but transportation apparently is due to be separately calculated with.

In the meantime, and immediately, New Deal leaders are demanding a clean sweep of the Democratic national committee.

Flynn May Go.

Differing entirely from the Wallace verdict, Democratic sentiment, in general, demands a wholesale cleaning out of Chairman Joe Flynn and associates, and a completely new set-up.

They want younger men, the rising generation urges.

There isn't any dispute on the war issue.

Man About Manhattan

Irish Luck

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—When a girl is red-headed and freckle-faced and Irish and has Marcy McGuire for a name, only nice things should happen to her. Quite a few nice things have happened to Marcy McGuire in the last couple of months, and I wouldn't be surprised if they were only beginning.

Marcy is 17 and is from Des Moines. She was discovered by an RKO talent scout, singing in a Chicago night club, while the scout was killing an hour between trains. She was taken to Hollywood and tossed a part in a little gem called "Seven Days' Leave," which has for its star Lucille Ball, the pride of Butte, Montana, and that was that.

Marcy, however, took over. She has been taking over since. Her part was fattened three times, meaning she got more lines to speak and more songs to sing. She looked like a good investment, although she is only five feet tall and has some growing to do, so she and her pretty mother were hurried off to New York. This is what is known as the build-up and gets to be pretty routine stuff. But nothing about Marcy is routine.

SHE got off the train with her Scottie's leach wrapped around her ankle socks, and had you seen her you would have thought the thing to do would be to take her to the nearest Automat and show her how to save a dime on lemonade by combining ice water with free lemon slices like a schoolgirl out for a big time in the big town.

One of the first items of business was a cocktail party, and Marcy had the grand old-fashioned idea that the hostess at a party should try to do something about entertainment. So she sang and danced and one song she sang was "White Christmas," which was something special because Marcy has a good range.

The way it worked out, the screen writers and a lot of others got to following her around, and asking her to sing for them. Marcy is about as high-hat as last year's carpet slippers, and she takes root in a hurry. The inevitable happened, of course. Marcy came down with laryngitis, which is known in Des Moines and in my home town as a sore throat. Nearly everyone who comes to New York between fall and spring gets a sore throat in a couple of days. It's the damp climate.

MARCY'S mother, in close head curls and hair ribbon, looks like a big sister, and acts like one. Instead of talking about Marcy like a little precious, she was filled with news of her husband who recently sold his printing business in Chicago to get a vacation before his anticipated call from the army.

Marcy, of course, had to lie about her age in order to sing in Chicago. "But they are catching up to me now," she wails. "I can't walk onto a studio lot without a welfare board teacher or mother on hand. These teachers follow me everywhere—even sit beside me when I eat. I really think they should be called wardens."

A Farmer's Diary

40 Million Farmers

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

FARMERS are more self sufficient than any other class of people. The farmer has learned to make a decent living and prosper under hard conditions. Never has a humble, industrious, honest group of people done so much with so little as the average farmer—of years ago, or of today.

Bad roads, long hours and scanty financial returns have been his lot, yet I have never heard of a rural neighborhood walking out on strike. The labor unions have made bids for the dairyman and the beef cattle producers. Farmers have organized co-operatively in order to maintain more reasonable prices for equipment purchased and for products sold. Their voice in the government should bear weight, for they represent almost one-third of the country's population. In other words, about 40 million people are engaged in producing food for 60 million pursuing other occupations.

The average farmer is not poverty stricken—nor is he wealthy. He belongs, actually and by rights, to the great middle class. His environment is the great outdoors: the soil that teems with life is his laboratory and his workshop; he has learned that when his land is fed and treated as an integral part of his well being, he will gain not only financially but also in the sympathy and respect of his neighbors.

Demands to observe rationing are seldom protested by country people. A farmer had a load of produce to go to market. His neighbor drove by in a large truck, not fully loaded. Both men worked to transfer the whole load to one truck, and they went into town together. In many localities milk is hauled for a nominal fee by the man who may have the best equipment and the most free time. They kill and cure their own meat for a year in the future, thus saving transportation and labor. By repairing his own machinery the farmer makes his tools last for the duration. He culls his hens and keeps the good layers; he breeds his stock for a larger production of food—meat, milk and eggs—with the same amount of feed and labor. Any one of these phases of farming would be a full-time job for some city man.

Farm problems are many in wartime—but with his usual calm, the man on the farm is going optimistically ahead. He may not get all done that he would like to do. He does the best he can.
